UFC champ looks to roll over contender

UFC light-heavyweight champion Jon (Bones) Jones and former champion Lyoto (The Dragon) Machida are headed for a collision Dec. 10 at UFC 140 at the Air Canada Centre. Both fighters were in town yesterday to promote the fight. Jones was originally slated to face another former champion in Rashad Evans. But Evans is still recovering from a hand injury and had to step aside. Tickets for the Toronto card go on sale later this week. More coverage, page 58.

Red-light runners could line city coffers, report says

- 87 cameras at 144 intersections in city
- Info used to mail tickets to offenders

The city could add $2.5 million to its revenue by boosting the effectiveness of red-light cameras at intersections, while continuing to push down collision rates, according to a report from the auditor general's office.

Between 2000, when the first cameras were installed, and 2009, the program drained more in costs than it took in via fines.

But last year, when fines were boosted to $325 from $180, the program generated $800,000 for the city. The report says that by increasing the program's effectiveness, the city can glean even more money while continuing to increase safety. Last year, 38,000 tickets were issued to motorists who ran red lights.

The auditor general recommends asking the province to permit bylaw officers to enforce licence-plate visibility standards in the course of their normal duties. Making sure plate numbers are visible could draw $1.7 million more from the program, according to the report.

Promptly repainting stop-line markings at camera intersections could pull in $600,000 more, while enforcing payment from out-of-province offenders could net $200,000, the report says.

Red-light cameras are evenly distributed among the city's 44 wards. The report recommends that council review whether even distribution is effective.

Mississauga takes shark fin off menu

Mississauga councillors unanimously adopted a by-law yesterday that bans the possession and sale of shark-fin products in the city.

The decision makes Mississauga the largest city in Canada to ban the controversial products, the consumption of which has pushed many of the world's shark species to the brink of extinction.

The move came a day before a Toronto council committee was to address the issue, and following introduction of a ban in Oakville in July.

At the municipal level, much of the debate revolves around whether cities have the jurisdiction and the ability to enforce such a ban.

Toronto Coun. Glenn De Baeremaeker, who with colleague Kristyn Wong-Tam has been pushing for a local fin ban, said the Mississauga vote strengthens their hand ahead of a vote in the licensing and standards committee meeting today. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

School board anticipates student boom

Higher enrolment in public system attributed to rise in birth rates, full-day learning for kindergartners

After seeing a dramatic drop of more than 20,000 students over the past decade, Toronto's public school board says enrolment is starting to pick up and expected to grow by almost 40,000 by 2035.

If the enrolment projections prove accurate, by that time the board will technically have enough students to fill all of its current elementary schools.

"I think there's a sense now of finally, we've hit the bottom and that curve is starting to increase. We are actually in a position of starting to recover what we've lost," said Daryl Sage, director of strategy and planning for the Toronto District School Board, who recently presented trustees with a report on enrolment.

City of Toronto population projections also indicate the number of children, ages 5 to 19, is on the rise.

The decline in the number of elementary students has now stopped, he said, with 171,750 students in 2010 — and a projected 189,000 in 2020 and 203,500 in 2035.

At the secondary level, enrolment is expected to continue dropping until the mini-boom in elementary hits high schools, around 2019.

Library sees boom in e-book use

It looks like e-books are easy reading.

The Toronto Public Library is reporting that digital downloads from its site will hit 500,000 this year, double the number from 2010 and more than 10 times what they were in 2007.

"This is a huge jump," said Anne Marie Aikins, the library's manager of community relations. "And, incidentally, book borrowing is increasing slightly, as well, so the book isn't dead. That's for sure." The library had its busiest year in 2010, with 18 million visits and 32 million items circulated.

But the library may have to limit additions to its digital and print collections this year, as it searches for ways to cut the mandated 10 per cent — or $17 million — from its 2011 operating budget to reduce the city's deficit.

The recommended staff cuts will be released this afternoon in advance of Monday's library board meeting.

Although Aikins wouldn't say what the recommendations involved, she did say closing library branches isn't one of them.

Centenarian Fauja Singh ready to run in Sunday's marathon

He's a long-distance runner whose own coach concedes is not as fast as he used to be.

"We've learned to pace ourselves a little bit better," said trainer Harmander Singh.

Then again, Fauja Singh, no relation, was 89 years old when he started competing in races. And now he's 100.

"I am but a simple man," Singh the competitor, a Sikh with a long white beard who only speaks Punjabi, said in a translated statement. "I give it my best shot and it happens that the results are better than others."

The centenarian, who lives in the United Kingdom by way of India, is ready to compete in Sunday's Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon in an attempt to land a Guinness World Record.

"I always wanted to be the oldest marathon runner and said to myself that if an opportunity presented itself, I will not turn it down."
FAUJA SINGH

He's already set three records for men over 90 — one for 10,000 metres, which he completed in 64 minutes in the Lahore Marathon in 2005; and two in Toronto, for a half-marathon in 2004 (2 hours 29 minutes 59 seconds) and a full marathon in 2003 (5 hours 40 minutes 1 second).

Now he wants one more record in his century-old age.

Sell yourself — or someone you know for a Notable award

Do you know a Notable? A young professional with enviable drive, ambition and entrepreneurial spirit? Perhaps you're a Notable.

Well, here is your chance to send a shout-out — and to have their talents recognized by Canadians from coast to coast.

The inaugural Notable Awards, driven by Lexus, are a first-of-its-kind celebration of Canada's cutting-edge, passionate, and innovative young professionals from across the country.

Metro News is proud to be the Official Print Sponsor of the Notable Awards.

The Awards program celebrates outstanding young professionals in 13 categories; one winner will also be named Young Professional of the Year.

To nominate a friend, a colleague or even yourself, log onto notable.ca/awards — the process is fast and easy. But do it now, as nominations close on Oct. 14.

Starting Oct. 18, all the nominees will be posted at notable.ca and you can vote for your favourite in each category. The four finalists, as determined by you, will then be judged by a panel of leading industry professionals.

The Notable Awards will culminate with a not-to-be-missed event hosted by CP24's Melissa Grelo on Nov. 10 at Andrew Richard Designs in Toronto, where the winners will be announced. METRO

He who laughs stays warm

Canadians are funniest people on the planet — maybe because it's so cold outside: Comedy Awards creator

Her sister may have been the prom queen, but Debra DiGiovanni is getting the last laugh.

"I have a fraternal twin sister who was the prom queen and I was not invited to the prom. I did her hair for the prom," said DiGiovanni, who regularly riffs on her unglamorous life as a standup comic and a regular on MTV's Video on Trial.

DiGiovanni is seeking her third win as Best Female Standup when the Canadian Comedy Awards and Festival opens for a five-day run from Thursday to Monday.

Former standup and sketch performer Tim Progosh said he co-founded the awards in 2000 to recognize the fact "we're the funniest people on the planet."

"I don't know why. It has something to do with the fact its cold and we have to be inside a lot and make each other laugh," Progosh said.

DJ Demers has found being deaf is no barrier to standup. He's among the nominees for Best Newcomer — an award DiGiovanni won in 2002 — and has found having two hearing aids occasionally comes in handy in front of a rowdy crowd.

"I make a lot of jokes about my hearing aids and then I also make a lot of jokes about my jokes about my hearing aids. So I like to address the elephant in the room. It is a part of my life and there's a lot of humour in it," said Demers, 25.

Today marks 12 months since 33 Chilean miners were miraculously rescued from the San José mine ◆ The inspirational story earned 'Los 33' global fame ◆ For some, the past year has changed their lives for the better ◆ Others are battling poverty, addiction and unemployment

A bittersweet year

MIREYA SEGUEL
METRO WORLD NEWS IN CHILE

ALEX IBANEZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS,CHILEAN PRESIDENTIAL PRESS OFFICE

31 miners have sued the Chilean state for $17 million US, saying it failed to ensure safe working conditions.

They have travelled the globe, rubbed elbows with celebrities and been cheered as heroes the world over. One year after 33 Chilean miners were winched to the surface from their entombment 700 metres underground, they still get recognition for their incredible saga of endurance and survival.

But, perhaps surprisingly, the instant fame and status have brought problems of their own, and the promised riches have never materialized.

The Copiapó miners have walked a long road since their dramatic rescue from the San José mine was watched on television by an estimated one billion viewers.

Many of the miners say they are worse off now than they were before the accident. Some are without steady jobs and most are still on medical leave recovering from the trauma of having been buried alive for 10 weeks.

Fourteen of the miners rely on a government disability pension of $470 a month, but they are still struggling.

Now, however, "Los 33" are starting to mobilize, hoping to make some money from their experience. They have hired the law firm Carey and Company and established a committee to protect their image and sell their story. They have also signed a deal with the William Morris Endeavor agency for film and television projects. Meanwhile, Hollywood producer Mike Medavoy plans to make a movie of their story based on a book by author Héctor Tobar, which was inspired by miner Victor Segovia's writings while he was underground.

Determined to seek justice, some of the miners have filed a negligence suit against the Chilean government for failing to ensure proper working conditions at the mine.

And, perhaps most surprising of all, more than half of the men say they want to go back underground. It's a matter of simple economics, they say — they need the money — and mining is all they know.

One year later

- Yonni Barrios, 51 The group's "nurse" is suffering from silicosis. Owns a warehouse, but earnings are slim. Receives a government pension.
- Darío Segovia, 49 Opened a greengrocer in Copiapó thanks to funding from Chilean businessman and philanthropist Leonardo Farkas. Receives a government pension.
- Luis Urzúa, 55 Gives motivational talks with some of his colleagues and receives a government pension.

- Jorge Galleguillos, 56 Gives motivational talks and receives a government pension.
- José Henríquez, 55 Told his story for the book Miracle in the Mine, published today. Receives a government pension and has decided to return to mining.
- Mario Sepúlveda, 41 The extroverted miner nicknamed "Super Mario" owns an event centre in Santiago.
- Mario Gómez, 65 Suffering from silicosis and wants to retire. Receives a government pension.
- Víctor Zamora, 34 Has no steady job. Sells fruits and vegetables from the living room of his home. Suffers from insomnia.
- Franklin Lobos, 53 Works as technical co-ordinator of Copiapó's football club development leagues. Receives a government pension.
- Claudio Acuña, 36 After failed attempts at getting into a new line of work, he was only able to land another mining job.
- Víctor Segovia, 49 Owns a taxicab and a school bus. He's writing a book about the accident based on diaries he kept while underground. Receives a government pension.
- Ariel Ticona, 30 He spends time at home with his daughter Esperanza, who was born while he was trapped underground. Unemployed and experiencing stress.
- Daniel Herrera, 28 As part of his therapy, he makes public appearances in a special hall dedicated to the miners at Santa Cruz Museum. Also on medical leave.
- José Ojeda, 48 On medical leave, he still suffers from the trauma of being trapped underground. Receives a government pension.
- Pablo Rojas, 46 Unemployed. Receives a government pension.
- Omar Reygadas, 57 Working as a motivational speaker. Receives a government pension.
- Alex Vega, 32 Has no steady job, but does temporary work as a mechanic. On medical leave.
- Samuel Ávalos, 44 Working as a motivational speaker.
- Renán Ávalos, 30 Dealing with psychological problems.
- Florencio Ávalos, 32 Unemployed but has applied for a job as a miner at Collahuasi copper mine in northern Chile.

A celebration — then came the hangover

It should have been a time of triumph for the 33 rescued Chilean miners.

Instead, many of them partied a little too hard, and controversy has emerged over the effectiveness of the care the men received, especially after news surfaced that miner Edison Peña was in rehab for drug and alcohol abuse.

Alberto Iturra, chief psychologist of the rescue mission, says his team couldn't prevent some situations from occurring. "A struggle began on getting exclusive interviews from the media, not allowing the miners to spend more time with their families," he said.

"Only a few days after their return to the surface, there was an explosive excess of partying and drinking for them. They didn't even have the time to rest in hospital."

But Alejandro Pino, manager of the Chilean Safety Association, insists he did everything he could to get the best results from the treatment program.

"Medical issues such as alcoholism are not necessarily as a psychological consequence of the accident," he said. "In truth, the men's psychological behaviour was much better than we expected anyway."

NDP, PCs will not field candidates for Speaker's chair at Queen's Park

TANYA TALAGA/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

NDP Leader Andrea Horwath will convene her expanded caucus — including nine rookies elected last week — this morning at the University of Toronto's Hart House.

The brinksmanship has begun.

Signalling it may not be smooth sailing for Premier Dalton McGuinty's minority Liberal government, the Progressive Conservatives and the NDP are refusing to cede their advantage in numbers by fielding candidates for Speaker of the Legislature.

With the Liberals at 53 seats in the 107-member House — compared to the combined tally of 54 Tories and New Democrats — the opposition parties hope to maintain that crucial edge.

To that end, none of the 17 NDP members are willing to stand as the House referee and sources say the 37 Tories are leaning in the same direction.

"Why would we?" one opposition MPP said yesterday.

The Tories and New Democrats would therefore force the Liberals to provide a Speaker, who referees debate in the Legislature.

Insiders say eager Grits are already preparing bids for the prestigious post, which includes an additional $36,364 in annual pay above the base MPP salary of $116,550, a prized suite of offices and a residence at the Legislature.

A Liberal Speaker would leave the governing party outnumbered 54 to 52.

"It doesn't matter if it's one or two seats," a senior Liberal said in an interview, noting McGuinty plans to govern as a de facto majority premier.

"Ontarians want us to get to work creating jobs and making the challenging decisions about reducing the cost of government while still maintaining services.

"No one wants an election any time soon including neither of those two parties."

The jockeying has already begun in the race to be Speaker, a job that also includes overseeing buildings and grounds in the Legislative precinct.

Liberal MPPs Bob Delaney (Mississauga-Streetsville), Helena Jaczek (Oak Ridges-Markham), Dave Levac (Brant), and David Zimmer (Willowdale) have let their interest be known, Grits say.

Syrian rally staged: Opponents

Opposition has formed Syrian National Council, but it has not been internationally recognized

Tens of thousands of Syrians thronged the main square of the capital, as well as nearby streets, yesterday in a show of support for embattled President Bashar Assad. But opponents charge such rallies are staged by the regime.

International pressure is building on Assad to step down over his regime's bloody crackdown on anti-government protests. The UN says nearly 3,000 people have been killed so far.

The demonstration was intended to show that Assad still enjoys the support of many Syrians. It was huge in comparison with anti-regime protests held across the country since March, which are often met by tear gas and gunfire from police and security.

The uprising has challenged the Assad family's 40-year ruling dynasty, but it has yet to bring out the middle and upper-middle classes in Damascus and Aleppo, the two economic powerhouses.

Organizers said the rally was also meant to thank Russia and China for blocking a UN Security Council resolution condemning Syria for its brutal crackdown.

On Tuesday, China urged Assad to move toward faster political reform.

"We oppose the use of violence and do not wish to see more bloodshed. We believe the Syrian government should swiftly enact their reform commitments ... and resolve problems through dialogue and negotiations," said a statement by China's Foreign Ministry spokesman Liu Weimin.

Lady Liberty's a model specimen

Real estate developer Leonard Stern has acquired the only replica of the Statue of Liberty in the U.S. and will permanently display it in the public plaza of 667 Madison Avenue, a commercial high-rise building he owns in New York. At nine-feet tall, the rare model replica dwarfs its real counterpart, which stands 151 feet. According to French law, only 12 copies can ever be made from Frederic Auguste Bartholdi's original plaster mold that he blew up to 16 times its size to create one of the most famous sculptures in the world.

It's sex equality, your majesty

Britain's PM wants to bring laws on royal succession into the 21st century 'Male superiority' would end

In 21st-century Britain, gender equality is catching up to royalty.

Britain's government is pushing a plan to change the rules on royal succession to provide equal treatment for princes and princesses.

As the law stands now, an elder daughter would be passed over as monarch in favour of a younger brother.

But under the latest proposal, the first child of Prince William and the former Kate Middleton would eventually become monarch — regardless of sex.

Prime Minister David Cameron said he has written to 15 other Commonwealth nations where Queen Elizabeth II is head of state requesting their views on modernizing succession.

"We espouse gender equality in all other aspects of life and it is an anomaly that in the rules relating to the highest public office we continue to enshrine male superiority," Cameron wrote in his letter.

The changes would also lift a centuries-old ban on British monarchs marrying Roman Catholics — a rule Cameron described in his letter as a "historical anomaly."

"We do not think it can continue to be justified," Cameron said.

Queen bows out

- Buckingham Palace has always refrained from commenting on the succession issue, saying it's a matter for the government.
- The prime minister's office said the Queen would not be part of the new discussions.
- David Cameron said he will be discussing the proposals when he meets Commonwealth leaders at a summit in Australia later this month.

Search for baby brings few clues

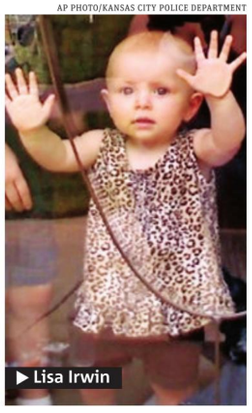
Police take no-holds-barred approach as search continues into 2nd week Lisa Irwin last seen Oct. 3

Authorities searching for a missing baby in Kansas City have marched shoulder-to-shoulder through woods, rappelled down cliffs and combed through landfills. They've interrogated her parents for hours and called in firefighters to search an 11-metre well that seemed like a possible place to hide a tiny body.

But after receiving more than 300 tips and chasing down many others, police still have no idea what happened to Lisa Irwin, a fair-haired, big-eyed baby, whose first birthday is now only a month away.

Police yesterday scoured a new wooded area with all-terrain vehicles and search dogs just east of the family's home. On Tuesday, police searched a nearby abandoned home and cistern, while more than 30 detectives pursued additional leads.

AP PHOTO/KANSAS CITY POLICE DEPARTMENT



▶ Lisa Irwin

Lisa's mother, Deborah Bradley, said she checked on her daughter late Oct. 3, but the baby was gone early the next morning when her father, Jeremy Irwin, returned home from a late shift at work. The couple told police they frantically searched their home but found only that the house lights were on and a window was open.

Yesterday marked the beginning of the search's second week. Spokesman Capt. Steve Young said police would carry on.

Marathon runner 'bus'-ted

Spectator shuttle actually powered man to 'tough' third-place finish

After crossing the finish line in third place and smashing his personal best, Rob Sloan celebrated and boasted how he'd just completed an "unbelievably tough" marathon.

It turns out things weren't quite what they seemed.

Sloan, organizers say, had actually dropped out 32 kilometres into the race, hitched a ride on a spectator shuttle bus and emerged from the woods near the finish line to make the podium.

After initially describing claims that he cheated in Sunday's Kielder Marathon near Newcastle, England as "laughable," the 31-year-old former army mechanic admitted his transgression following an investigation by organizers.

TORONTO

Our Great City Needs Great People

We need you to serve on the Sign Variance Committee

Mayor Rob Ford and Toronto City Council invite and encourage you to contribute to the City.

The City of Toronto is looking for five Committee members for the Sign Variance Committee. The Sign Variance Committee is a City board that hears appeals of the Chief Building Official's decisions on variance applications for first party signs and makes decisions on variance applications for third party signs. Members must attend an orientation and training program.

What are the qualifications?

Members of the Sign Variance Committee should collectively bring the following skills and expertise to the committee:

- demonstrate a strong interest in the complexities and challenges of city building
- bring an understanding of the diverse neighbourhoods and communities across the city
- have knowledge in one or more areas of: law, planning, architecture, government, economic development, community development, land development, or citizen advocacy
- demonstrate decision-making, communication, and mediation skills to facilitate an open and fair meeting process
- at least 3 members should have adjudication experience and 2 members should have public speaking and organization skills to be able to chair public meetings and maintain order in conflict situations.

Who Can Apply?

You must be a resident of Toronto, at least 18 years old, and not an employee of the City or its agencies, nor the spouse, child or parent of a City Councillor.

Former Council members who served in the immediately preceding term of Council are ineligible for appointment to the Sign Variance Committee.

You cannot act as an agent for parties before the Sign Variance Committee.

You cannot be an owner, employee or agent of an advertising agency, communications or media relations agency or be an employee, agent or owner of a business which owns, controls or has shares in a media outlet.

How do I Get Information and an Application?

- download information and an application from the City Web site: http://www.toronto.ca/public-appointments/opportunities.htm;
- pick up an application kit from the City Clerk's Secretariat Offices at Toronto City Hall or the Etobicoke, North York or Scarborough Civic Centres;
- e-mail: appoint@toronto.ca;
- call 311 (TTY 416-338-0889) for information or to ask for a kit by mail; or
- pick up kits and talk to staff at a Drop-in Information session:

DROP-IN INFORMATION SESSION: Tuesday, October 18, 2011
City Hall, 2nd Floor, Committee Room 2 from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

If you have special needs such as sign language interpretation please let us know:
e-mail appoint@toronto.ca or call 311 or TTY 416-338-0TTY (0889)

How do I Apply?

Complete and e-mail, mail, fax or deliver your application by Wednesday, November 2, 2011 at 4:30 p.m.

Only applications received in the prescribed form by the deadline are eligible. Late applications may not be considered.

Appointments will be on the basis of equal opportunity to reflect the diverse nature of the city's population. Women, young adults 18-30, people with disabilities, Aboriginal/First Nations people, members of racial minorities are especially encouraged to apply.

Pack up and go, U.K. squatters told

Nomadic Irish Travellers lose key court battle

They've lived there for a decade. Now they must go.

Britain's High Court yesterday rejected an appeal against eviction by a community of Irish Travellers.

The decision clears the way for bailiffs to begin clearing the Dale Farm site, near London.

On the move

- There are between 15,000 and 30,000 Irish Travellers in Britain, where they are recognized as an ethnic minority by government.

The years-long eviction battle has provoked concern from the UN, and Oscar-winning actress Vanessa Redgrave has come to the community's support.

The local authority says it's a simple planning issue. The 86 families call it ethnic cleansing.

BlackBerry blues spread

Canadian carriers say some of their customers were affected

Research In Motion's reputation for reliability was in tatters and users had another reason to switch to Apple and Android smartphones as technical glitches affecting millions of BlackBerry users for a third day spread to Canada, analysts said yesterday.

The BlackBerry outage even reached Prime Minister Stephen Harper's office. His spokesman, Andrew MacDougall, tweeted: "Am being impacted by RIM/Berry service outage — please call if you need to reach me."

Outages for RIM's instant messaging service, email and browsing that started earlier this week in Europe, the Middle East and Africa spread to parts of Canada yesterday as the company worked to restore service.

Tweets

- @BreakLouiseDown: Dear Blackberry, start working again. I don't have one but I think I'm going to shoot myself if I see another facebook status about you.
- @iKamatsho: Dear Blackberry, I think it's nice that you're honouring Steve Jobs' death with a 3 day silence.
- @IAmOmar_UK: Dear Blackberry, I went from having a smart phone to having an over sized calculator. Thanks a lot. - frustrated customer.

The list of affected regions also includes areas of South America, as well as Asian markets including Hong Kong, Japan, Singapore and India.

"It's a huge embarrassment for a company that has built its reputation on notion of service and reliability and when all else fails your BlackBerry will still work," said Michael Gartenberg, director of research at U.S.-based Gartner Inc.

The Waterloo-based company said it was working to get through a backlog of traffic, but added that users in the Americas may be experiencing intermittent service delays.

Bell spokesman Mark Langton said BlackBerry email service was back on line, but there would be delays as queued messages get cleared. Some Rogers and Telus customers were also affected by the outage.

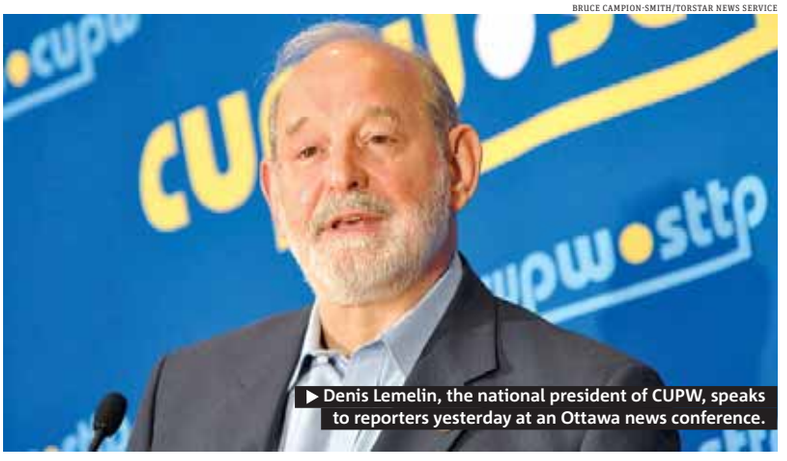
Posties challenge back-to-work law

Canada Post asking court to determine whether Charter protects the right to strike, lawyer says

BRUCE CAMPION-SMITH/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE



Denis Lemelin, the national president of CUPW, speaks to reporters yesterday at an Ottawa news conference.

Canada Post workers are taking the Harper government to court in a case that could test the Conservatives' aggressive stance on the rights of unionized labour.

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers is challenging the constitutionality of the law which forced its members back to work in June. Close to 50,000 Canada Post workers were locked out by the Crown corporation in June after 12 days of rotating strikes.

"This back-to-work legislation was unjust," union president Denis Lemelin told a news conference yesterday.

"There is a fundamental principle here — the freedom of association."

The union has already challenged several elements of the legislation, including the selection of the arbitrator. It says the judge chosen by Labour Minister Lisa Raitt has no expertise in labour relations and also doesn't speak French.

The bill that forced Canada Post employees back to work also marked former NDP leader Jack Layton's legislative last stand. Layton led his party through a 58-hour filibuster in the House of Commons designed to stall passage of the law in order to give both sides more time to talk. A month later he stepped down as leader and died in August.

PayPal looking to ease web shopping

Single-account service would keep a user's personal details within eBay's online-payment service, it says

PayPal, eBay's online-payment service, has announced a new service that aims to make it easier to shop online by cutting down on the number of accounts consumers have to create with various web retailers.

Called PayPal Access, the service was unveiled at eBay's X.commerce developer conference in San Francisco. It was to be launched with X.commerce, a new eBay Inc. business geared toward developers and merchants that encourages developers to integrate eBay's technology into mobile commerce apps. X.commerce merges the software developer communities for eBay.com, PayPal and eBay-owned e-commerce software company Magento, which together include 850,000 developers.

Single access

PayPal Access will let users log on to participating retailers' sites and pay with their PayPal username and password, rather than creating a separate account, eBay spokesman Anuj Nayar said.

Also yesterday, X.commerce planned to roll out a set of developer tools called X.commerce Fabric, which is intended to simplify the process for adding eBay-owned technology — such as that behind Milo, a local shopping engine eBay bought in 2010 — to apps for smartphones and tablet computers.

And the conference will be used to show off the upcoming version of eBay's smartphone app RedLaser, which currently lets people scan product barcodes and compare prices online and in local stores. RedLaser 3.0, which eBay spokesman Anuj Nayar said will be out by the end of the year, will add PayPal for purchasing items directly from the app.

X.commerce will also likely announce a partnership with Facebook.

TLP™ IS A "NEW" NON-SURGICAL SCIENTIFIC APPROACH FOR MEN AND WOMEN TO HELP CONTROL THINNING HAIR, BALDNESS AND PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH THE SCALP.

This cold laser creates a soft halo of light around the scalp. Laser hair therapy is a medically tested, safe and proven method using low level laser energy, or "soft cold" laser light to effectively treat and control problem hair loss and encourage new growth.

WILL IT WORK FOR ME?

Laser Therapy is equally effective for both men and women. Most participants will see tangible response within a short period of time after commencing treatment, with results enhanced as the program continues.

In fact, past studies have shown a 93% increase in hair among the respondents using Cold Laser Therapy. For those clients not able to come to our clinic on a regular basis, a home laser program is available.

During your initial consultation and assessment, it will be determined if you are a good candidate for Laser Therapy. If so, your results are assured and backed by our exclusive guarantee.

Union's wings clipped

CUPE says it has dropped plan for Air Canada flight attendants to strike

Air Canada passengers are breathing a sigh of relief that a day of uncertainty has ended with the blocking of a planned strike by flight attendants hours before it was set to begin.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents 6,800 flight attendants, said it cancelled the strike after Labour Minister Lisa Raitt submitted two referrals to the Canada Industrial Relations Board at 2 p.m.

CIRB executive director Ginette Brazeau said the minister's action automatically suspends the workers' right to strike. While a legal strike is not permitted, workers could have gone on wildcat strikes. However, union leaders could have faced fines.

The union accused Raitt of misusing the federal labour board, which is intended to be an independent, quasi-judicial body.

EU wants banks to hike capital buffers

The European Union plans to force the region's biggest banks to raise billions of euros in capital to better withstand market turmoil over the high debt in several euro countries, the European Commission's president said yesterday.

Jose Manuel Barroso warned that key European banks should not be allowed to pay out dividends or bonuses until they have raised their capital buffers to the new standards.

Under the new rules, banks will have to implement new international rules on bank capital much earlier than 2019, as was initially foreseen.

9 Europe's biggest banks have to bolster the financial pad they maintain to absorb losses to about 9 per cent of their loans, investments and other risky assets, compared with the earlier 5 to 6 per cent.

The fear is that banks could take big losses on bonds they own from governments with shaky finances, like Greece. That uncertainty is stifling lending — both between banks and to the wider economy.

BMO sees economy slowing

Canada's economy will continue to slow noticeably next year, but all regions will avoid recession, the Bank of Montreal predicts in a new outlook.

And most provinces are doing better than expected in their deficit projections, leaving room for fiscal stimulus if conditions deteriorate, the bank said in its report released yesterday.

The bank predicts the economy will grow by 1.8 per cent next year, down from 2.2 per cent this year and 3.2 last year.

Winnipeggers' passion for Jets to be brewed as beer

ELISHA DACEY
IN WINNIPEG

Budweiser announced yesterday that giant "vessels" of water placed around Winnipeg Sunday — to celebrate the return of big-league hockey to Winnipeg — will be turned into beer that will only be sold in Winnipeg.

Called Honour the Ice, the water vessels were placed in strategic places near the MTS Centre and other landmarks such as the Forks, said Kyle Norrington, marketing director for Budweiser.

Winnipeggers were asked to bestow their good luck wishes on the vessels of water for a successful hockey season.

The water will now be transported back to Edmonton, where it will be brewed for a Winnipeg-only beer called Welcome Back Brew.

TRAVELLING GETS THIS GUY FLUSHED

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

It says something about my lack of recent globetrotting that I'm really looking forward to discovering some strange bathrooms.

I'll explain that in a second, but let it be known I've been stuck on this continent for five long years. In my 20s I had extended stays in Austria, Zimbabwe and New Zealand, and I've been home so long that I actually miss feeling uncomfortable.

I miss culture shock, in other words, which usually goes something like this:

1) Fascination with the new culture: "Wow, they eat lizard eyeballs here!"

2) Feeling uncomfortable: "My eyeball smells funny."

3) Rejection: "Who wants my eyeball?"

4) Understanding: "Ohhh, my eyeball needs Tabasco!"

5) Embracing the new culture: "I love eyeballs! Satisfying! Now, what was it you wanted to tell me was just a joke?"

I need bizarre food. I need confusing customs. I need to guess whether the local barfly seems like a big weirdo because of cultural differences between us or because he is, in fact, a big weirdo. And, yes, as a "one world" sort, I miss being able to embrace the full diversity of the world's bathrooms.

"It's an eco-friendly country, so toilet-paper dispensers only allow you one square at a time, and the automatic hand dryers turn on for approximately three microseconds, give or take a picosecond. Also, the flush is so wimpy that you can disturb the bowl equally well by jumping up and down on the bathroom tile."

Here's a tour:

In New Zealand, the locals are very conservative — not in their politics, but in their generosity with toilet paper. It's an eco-friendly country, so toilet-paper dispensers only allow you one square at a time, and the automatic hand dryers turn on for approximately three microseconds, give or take a picosecond. Also, the flush is so wimpy that you can disturb the bowl equally well by jumping up and down on the bathroom tile. It's madness.

In Zimbabwe, by contrast, the flush is so powerful you have to grab hold of the doorknob first, lest you be caught in the maelstrom. Also, the public services aren't what they could be — the Murderous Despot Appropriation really cuts into public funds — so I would often open a bathroom door and watch as a wave of filthy water rushed toward me while I scrambled to escape, Indiana Jones-style.

In Vienna (motto: "Kultur aus der Wazoo") there are "water closets" that play operas and urinals that are sculptures — no kidding. The urinal cakes may in fact be delicious pastry, but I never tried.

You can see how my boring old Canadian toilet isn't measuring up, no matter what Don Cherry thinks.

So, I'm now in the process of booking a one-month trek through Iceland, the Faroe Islands and Denmark. I'm hoping for interesting people, new food and plumbing to write about. Just thinking about it, I get a little flushed.

Worth Mentioning

Scientists have cracked the genetic code of the Black Death, one of history's worst plagues, and found that its modern day bacterial descendants haven't changed much.

Luckily, we have.

The evolution of society and medicine and our own bodies has far outpaced the evolution of that deadly bacterium, scientists said.

The 14th century bug is nearly identical to the modern-day version of the same germ. There are only a few dozen changes among the more than 4 million building blocks of DNA, according to the journal Nature.

What that shows is that the plague was deadly for reasons beyond its DNA, authors said.

In its day, the disease killed between 30 million and 50 million people — about one of every three Europeans. It came at the worst possible time — when the climate was suddenly getting colder, the world was in the midst of a long war and horrible famine, and people were moving into closer quarters, scientists say. And it was likely the first time the disease had struck humans, attacking people without any innate protection.

These colourful snails secrete mucus from their "foot," an organ at the base of their body. Instead of using slime to get around, they trap air inside fast-setting mucus to make bubbles that stick together and form rafts where they spend the rest of their lives.

WEIRD NEWS

It's like a deer in headlines

For the past week, a massive, short-tempered stag has been charging into British headlines, goring a man in the middle of a picnic and chasing one woman through the brush.

The stag's rampage has cast a shadow over Bushy Park, a quiet suburban expanse of tree-lined avenues and ponds some 21 kilometres southwest of central London.

"I've been in and out of the park for 20 years, and this is the first time I've heard of people being attacked in such quick succession," said Robert Piper, a sports and wildlife photographer whose dramatic shots of the angry deer have kept it in the headlines.

Bushy Park holds 320 deer, which roam freely across a 445-hectare area of meadows and forested areas.

They are generally gentle creatures — until fall's rutting season.

Park veteran Dick Hill, a 64-year-old retiree with binoculars dangling from his neck, says, "There have been quite a few of (the incidents) this year."

Hill said a shortage of female deer could be to blame for the aggressive behaviour.

London's feisty press have traced the path of the stag's rampage under articles bearing names such as "Stag Fright." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tokyo comes to T.O.

The Next Music from Tokyo showcase is taking place across the Toronto music scene

BACKSTAGE PASS

IAN GORMELY
METRO TORONTO

There are many shades to fandom. What makes a super fan to some is a casual tourist to others. But when it comes to music, it's pretty hard to top Steven Tanaka.

A physician by trade, Tanaka loves independent, underground music from Japan, not something Toronto tends to have in abundance.

"They don't make money," he says of the bands. "They play for the joy of being onstage. Their live performances are so outstanding. I thought it was a shame for them to not get any recognition."

After several years of travelling to Tokyo to see live shows Tanaka decided to put his money where his mouth was and bring some of his favourite bands to Canada for the Next Music from Tokyo tour. The third installment rolls through Toronto this weekend.

Tanaka's parents are from Japan, but he grew up in Vancouver listening to punk and hardcore, a genre which prides itself on its independent, do-it-yourself attitude. Listening to the music is cool, he explains, but you'll get more out of it when you play an active role. He fronts the bands' airfare and their accommodations for the week long treks. He also books the venues and organizes VISAs and work permits, things that end up being a year round headache. Then there's the financial cost of putting on such an ambitious tour.

"Some people think I actually make money, which is ridiculous." Tanaka says he lost $30,000 on the first tour alone but that the money is a small price to pay.

"I make a decent income [and] I thought I could do something useful with it," he says.

"I could buy a car, but I already have a car. What's that going to do for me? These are memories of a lifetime."

Next Music from Tokyo – Sat, Oct 15, the Rivoli, 334 Queen St. West. 8pm.19+ $10. Sun, Oct 16, the Velvet Underground, 510 Queen St. West. 7pm. All Ages. $10.

The bands

Here are a few of the bands playing this weekend in the Next Music from Tokyo showcase

- Natsumen Rising from the ashes of the pop-oriented BOat, this eight-piece band plays hardcore-infused progressive jazz.
- Akai Ko-en These four teenage girls removed all traces of their music from the Internet in an attempt to dash expectations of their live performances.
- Hyacca Probably the tour's most aggressive group. They have a tremendous live performance act.

Bad boy Gigandet

Twilight and Trespass star Cam Gigandet delights in playing the villain because he doesn't know how to play by the rules

Mr. Nice Guy he's not.

If anything, 29-year-old actor Cam Gigandet has cultivated quite a reputation for playing bad guys, and he prefers it that way.

The star of Twilight and Priest makes his next appearance with Trespass, a home-invasion thriller that pits his character and two other accomplices against a rich couple (played by Nicole Kidman and Nicholas Cage) whose house they hope to rob for millions.

Gigandet explained why playing the bad guy is so satisfying for him.

In this film, as in many others, you end up playing the bad guy. Why do you always get these parts?

I enjoy it the most. I think there just seems to be more to grab onto, I guess.

You can use your imagination a little bit more — whereas if they're a good guy or heroes, they have to abide by a strict set of rules and to this day I haven't been able to figure out how to work around those.

Maybe just because I don't know how to do it. There seems to be more creativity and imagination involved in justifying what they do.

And yeah, that's what people hire me for, so I'll take what I can get.

What are the key differences from playing, say, an evil vampire in Twilight and a desperate robber in Trespass?

I prefer Trespass and I had a good time on Twilight. We were all so new and young to the experience. Even our director at the time [Catherine Hardwicke] was new to directing, so it was a little haphazard how we shot.

And having 12 young actors, trying to corral everyone (was tough).

A lot of the time was spent doing that, whereas on Trespass, before we even started shooting, there were two or three weeks where we literally rehearsed every single day. To be able to do that is any actor's dream.

While rehearsing, did anyone have their own stories about having their house robbed?

Everyone would share their stories, just while we were rehearsing, and when you talk to everyone, surprisingly a lot of people have had this happen. Even — not that this is a normal one — but I think Nicolas Cage had someone end up in his bedroom when he was sleeping and they were naked or had a popsicle.

I haven't gotten to that place yet, but I think I'm protected enough with my mace and baseball bat.

Is your co-star Nicolas Cage as crazy as everyone says he is?

Yes and yes. I'll be honest. I was warned before working with him by a few people that he's very difficult and crazy and this and that and he is crazy but in such a good way.

I don't know if it's crazy so much as quirkiness.

He's just out there and outgoing and funnier than I could've imagined. I think he's a little misunderstood.

He definitely has a good sense of humour — an odd one, but a good one.

▶ Nicolas Cage is disappointed that his new film, Trespass, is being released for home viewing at the same time it hits theatres.

Cage laments lack of screen time

Nicolas Cage may be happy he got to work with Nicole Kidman and reunite with director Joel Schumacher on his new thriller Trespass. Yet Cage isn't thrilled that viewers will be able to watch the movie at home the same day it opens in a handful of theatres.

The story of a family terrorized by home intruders, Trespass debuts Friday for a limited theatrical run in New York City, Los Angeles, Chicago and seven other major markets.

It will be available at the same time for home viewing through video on demand.

The DVD and Blu-ray release follow barely two weeks later on Nov. 1, compared with a typical window of about four months between the time most Hollywood films open in theatres and debut on home video.

It's a business decision that will help Trespass distributor Millennium Entertainment, an independent outfit that does not have the big marketing bucks of a Hollywood studio, make the most of its advertising dollars.

Cage understands that, but he wishes the movie could have a separate life on the big-screen before it goes to smaller television and computer screens — or even tiny cellphone screens.

"I like movies to be seen the way the director wanted them to be seen, which is on the big-screen, with an audience, with their popcorn," Cage said in an interview alongside Schumacher at September's Toronto International Film Festival, where Trespass premiered.

Smaller distributors such as Magnolia Pictures and IFC Films often release films to theatres and video on demand around the same time.

With Academy Award winners Cage and Kidman, along with director Schumacher (Batman Forever, A Time to Kill), Trespass arguably is the biggest test yet for simultaneous big-screen and home releases.

‘A film about a cult’

Martha Marcy May Marlene delves into the world of manipulation

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

GETTY IMAGES

Writer-director Sean Durkin’s first feature film, Martha Marcy May Marlene, deals with the trauma of life inside and after escaping a cult — though that word is never used in the film.

In fact, the film’s protagonist, Elizabeth Olson — turning in a striking, heartbreaking performance — doesn’t use very many words at all, which makes understanding why she’s so troubled that much harder for her sister (Sarah Paulson) and brother-in-law (Hugh Dancy). Told in a fractured chronology that highlights Martha’s growing paranoia, the film is both beautiful and unsettling. But more unsettling for Durkin was how easy it was to find former cult members to discuss their experiences while researching the project.

Where did the idea for this movie start?

It started with just a very simple desire to maybe make a film about a cult. I felt like I hadn’t seen anything that was modern and naturalistic. I wanted to do something that showed a little bit more of the subtle manipulation. I started writing and I just started talking about it, and when you start talking about it, people are always like, “Oh my friend grew up in one. I’m sure he’d be happy to talk to you.” It’s amazing. I didn’t have to go out and search. It’s really common, which is very strange.

With the steps the cult leader (John Hawkes) takes to indoctrinate your heroine, it’s almost like a how-to guide.

It’s funny, these guys are all very generic. Like seriously, you read about them and they just all use the same tactics. The things that he does are just what these guys do over and over again. They just change their purpose.

The word “cult” never comes up in the movie.

We never used the word “cult” until after the movie was finished and we had to start talking about it, because there’s no other word to use.

But we never talked about it while we were there, when we were shooting.

With the actors, we never discussed it like that. “Cult” has got a lot of connotations that aren’t helpful when you’re making a movie about someone being manipulated into certain things.

I mean, no one in a cult ever talks about being in a cult or thinks they’re in a cult. They just think that what they’re doing is right and they’re doing what they believe in.

The title is a mouthful until you see the movie, and then it just rolls off the tongue.

Yeah, that seems to be a common response. I never wanted to call it anything else. I usually struggle with names of things that I do, but I came up with that the day I came up with the plot. And the name just popped into my head. I thought of Martha, and then Marcy May Marlene just flowed out after and that was it. At Sundance, the first couple big reviews to come out mentioned that once you see it, it’s easier — which was great to hear because it’s obviously a concern.

Bio

- Sean Durkin and his NYU classmates Josh Mond and Antonio Campos founded Borderline Films in 2005, and the three rotate the roles of writer, director and producer for their films.
- While Martha Marcy May Marlene is his first feature as a director, Durkin produced the company’s other features, including Afterschool and Simon Killer, which is currently in post-production.

Captain Kirk is covering tunes

Shatner says he 'was on dangerous ground' with his new spoken-word album Seeking Major Tom

William Shatner has boldly ventured into a new space-themed project: a spoken-word, cover-tune album that the former Star Trek captain felt was a risk when he recorded it.

"It's such a departure and it's such a reinterpretation of some classics that I knew that I was on dangerous ground," Shatner, 80, said during a recent telephone interview to promote Seeking Major Tom.

"For the longest time I didn't know whether it was going to be accepted or not. It seems to be taking (off)."

Out this week as a two-disc CD version as well as a three-disc vinyl edition, Seeking Major Tom features Shatner's trademark speak-sing interpretations of classic rock favourites and other space-themed songs. The first tune, Major Tom (Coming Home), begins with a blast: the sound of spacecraft lift-off followed by pulsating '80s synth sounds and Shatner's deadpan-to-dramatic delivery of the lyrics.

Other songs include Rocket Man, She Blinded Me With Science, Walking On The Moon, Bohemian Rhapsody and Iron Man.

Shatner said Cleopatra Records in Los Angeles approached him about a year ago to do recitations on an album. It wasn't a stretch: after all, Shatner had already done this type of thing before, first with his much-lampooned 1968 album The Transformed Man, and then with 2004's Has Been.

"I ultimately presented them with this and they were a little hesitant at first and then they got behind it," said the Montreal-born star, who's won two Emmy Awards and a Golden Globe.

"He just came up and kissed me," Leal tells Us Weekly of her introduction to Kutcher, who she claims had told her he was separated from Demi Moore.

Leal details a late night cavorting naked in a hot tub with Kutcher and one other woman before the pair retired to Kutcher's bedroom.

"He lost his towel and I took my robe off," Leal says. "Then we had sex." And apparently Kutcher's pillow talk got political, as Leal says he quizzed her on "up-and-coming candidates," she remembers. "I said Rick Perry. He asked if I'd vote for him. I said I didn't know and he laughed." METRO

Sweet and pretty

Just when you were beginning to get used to the idea of fall's kinky fetish wear, the fashion pendulum swung the completely opposite way for spring. Chanel, Louis Vuitton, Valentino and Givenchy are just a few houses that turned out the kinds of feminine, universally appealing dresses that both your mother and homegirl would approve of. Think: shimmery, ethereal dresses that resembled oyster shells and lace frocks the colour of lemon drops.

Tough and sporty

The spring summer collections will hit stores in February, just as preview coverage of the 2012 Olympics is getting underway. That's five whole months before you get sick of all talk about The Games. The mid-century revisited

Lately, the fashion weeks have been unfolding like a game of guess the decade. Last season was all about the '60s. The season before that, the '70s. And this time around, Prada, Jil Sander, Rochas and Dries van Noten were just a few that conjured up prim, '50s glamour. But it's a slightly different take on the decade from the whole Mad Men look that was so popular two years ago. It's a little bit Happy Days, a little bit Hitchcock. Prada's stiff, greaser jackets, Sander's crisp poplin dresses and Rochas's full skirts made a strong case for a polished, coolly calculated approach to dressing that simply doesn't exist in this day where most women try very hard to look like they didn't put any effort into their appearance at all.

Flaptastic

The '50s wasn't the only decade to make a comeback for spring. Ralph Lauren, Marc Jacobs, Etro and Gucci all served up fantastical flapper collections with one key element that is sure to trickle its way down to the H&Ms and Zaras of the world: the dropped-waist dress.

Back to Africa

The use of African prints for spring/summer collections is hardly new. But this season, the trend seemed to reach a tipping point with Burberry Prorsum, Donna Karan, Michael Kors and Alberta Ferretti, among a long list of others, all showing prints that were inspired by the continent in some shape or form.

LG taking Canadian couture to the core

Fresh faces and a new venue as Toronto's LG Fashion Week gears up to showcase spring-summer looks

Organizers of Toronto's LG Fashion Week have traded in their bricks-and-mortar home by the lake for makeshift tents in the heart of the city.

After setting up shop for several seasons at Heritage Court on the grounds of the historic Canadian National Exhibition, the semi-annual event is returning to its geographical roots in the downtown core.

LG Fashion Week will kick off Monday at David Pecaut Square, steps from the theatre district, Roy Thomson Hall and the TIFF Bell Lightbox where movies were screened during last month's film fest.

"As fabulous as the event has become, being behind the Princes' Gates at the CNE was not enough for the city to know our designers were working hard showing their collections," said Robin Kay, president of the Fashion Design Council of Canada, which organizes LG Fashion Week.

"It's very, very important for there to be a much larger collective consciousness around our fashion industry."

NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marking its 25th season, organizers are hoping the event's theme — Canada Cool — won't just be reflected under the runway lights but among those sitting in the shadows. Kay said there's an outreach program to buyers in every province. Those who do attend are afforded a unique opportunity to buy small collections of Canadian-style clothing they won't see in other stores, she noted. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chung is an English rose with a few thorns

Fashion multi-hyphenate Alexa Chung chats about trend-busting, the influence of boys and the ever-changing meaning of the 'it-girl'

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Alexa Chung is someone who has become famous for how she looks more so than her day job as a television personality. She's got a unique thing going — a tomboyish schoolgirl pluckiness that miraculously manages to look chic and modern, rather than childlike. Not every woman can pull off a Peter Pan collar, knee socks and loafers, but that won't stop hundreds of thousands from trying. The 28-year-old gives Kate Moss a run for her money as the British export women most want to dress like.

▶ Alexa Chung's new reality show, 24-hour Catwalk, premieres on the Lifetime Channel this fall.

How do you feel about the 'It-girl' label?
At the beginning I was uncomfortable with it. I guess it's my British way of being wary of celebration as it ultimately precedes a fall. Before, the it-girl scene meant people like Paris Hilton. But not anymore. Now, it's a different vibe. People like Diane Kruger, Elle Fanning and myself. I like to think we wear clothes in an interesting way, and not necessarily have the emphasis on sex. It's pretty cool.

People are always dissecting your style in magazines and on blogs. But how would you describe it?
I appreciate classic design, it's classic for a reason — a shirt and blazer is practical, comfortable and never looks dated. Carven is a brand that very much does what I love, a mix of strict mistress and schoolgirl. It's not overtly sexy and when you wear it you feel attractive. I'm more inspired by what men wear, people like Keith Richards, Bryan Jones and the Beatles. If I wear a girlie party dress, I prefer wearing it with a briefcase and brogues, though I'm a bit bored of that right now. I sometimes wish I'd been a boy. The more I think about it, the more I think my tomboy side is what I use to assert the fact that I'm not a push over. I guess I'd call it modern power dressing.

▶ A look from Alexa Chung's collection for Madewell.

How much time do you spend thinking about what to wear each day?
The key is I don't spend time getting ready in the morning but I do put a lot of thought into the things I buy. If you know what your style really is, it doesn't matter how you assemble things, you can just mix and match and it will always look nice.

You split your time between New York and London. What are the biggest differences, in terms of fashion, between the two cities?
People in England are less afraid to take risks and don't necessarily follow trends but instigate them naturally. The British have this eccentric, enchanting and mad heritage. In New York it's more mixed and tamed. In England, people indulge in this madness. In the States, people would be like, 'Oh my gosh, what is she wearing!'

You have been a model, a TV presenter and a designer. Which role do you feel most comfortable with?
Before I was on TV I went to art school and if I hadn't become a TV presenter I would have done design of some sort. It's more my scene and what I'm most comfortable doing. TV is not something I'm naturally good at whereas when I'm sitting sketching in the Madewell office, it feels natural and easy. In the U.K. everyone is saying, 'Alexa is concentrating on her TV career' but it's not that. I need the money. I'm like everyone else, TV is my job.

THE KIT

BY CHANTEL SIMMONS

Get the best bangs for your buck with these expert tips from Kit Expert Greg May, owner of Greg May Hair Architects.

I really want bangs, but my stylist says they won't look good on me because I have a low forehead and cowlick. Any tips for getting the right bangs that I'll love forever — or at least for fall?

Never say never (like Bieber)! Some bangs — I call it a fringe — look better on certain face shapes and hair lines. If you have a lower forehead, a fringe isn't your best look, because it can cut your face and can be hard to work with, since you don't have enough space to get the brush under the hair. Cowlicks and widow's peaks can also be challenging, but it's always possible to achieve a modified fringe. Once you've made the cut, make your priority after getting out of the shower drying your fringe before doing anything else (the rest of your hair, make-up, etc.). Brush hair one way and then the other, which can help loosen the cowlick and make hair lay flat.

BILD WELCOMES GREENBUILD

ROOFTOP SURFING

PAUL GOLINI JR.
HOME
@METRONEWS.CA

Last Tuesday, 25,000 building industry professionals with a penchant for green innovation descended upon the city of Toronto for Greenbuild, the U.S. Green Building Council's annual conference. It was the first time the Council had taken its annual conference outside of the U.S. and more than 108 countries sent delegates.

By way of welcoming them, the Canada Green Building Council set up Canada House at Steam Whistle Brewery to showcase home grown green talent and technology.

BILD was the Canada House launch sponsor and donning a red and white Canada scarf (on a 22-degree-weather day, no less) I was honoured to welcome everyone to the conference and to our great city.

In addition to the economic boost the conference gave to our hospitality industry, the conference was a great opportunity for the global building industry to learn from each other.

From a local perspective, I took part in numerous roundtable discussions with U.S. and global ambassadors and explained how the Ontario Building Code and Green Energy Act is leading edge.

With my BILD hat on, I was also able to shine the light on the GTA home building industry's enviable track record as world leaders in energy-efficient construction.

During a two-day trade show at Canada House, BILD had a booth with the Sustainable Housing Foundation and launched a U.S. Cross Border Builder Challenge.

We featured participating GTA builder projects that are 30 per cent more energy efficient than current Canadian building standards in a slideshow and we challenged U.S. home builders to build 50 per cent more energy efficient than the American standard.

Some BILD members took part in the Greenbuild education sessions, the tours, and the trade shows so that information about green technology, products and services could be brought back to their local companies.

I'm sure you will start to see evidence of that information sharing in the new homes built around the GTA and in the renovations and retrofits of existing homes in the coming years.

PAUL GOLINI JR. IS CHAIR OF THE BUILDING INDUSTRY AND LAND DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION (BILD) AND CAN BE FOUND ON TWITTER (TWITTER.COM/BILDGTA), FACEBOOK (FACEBOOK.COM/BILDGTA), AND BILD'S OFFICIAL ONLINE BLOG (BILDBLOGS.CA).

Rent to own your home

Sick of saving for that massive down payment? You may be able to purchase a condo sooner than you think

DUNCAN MCALLISTER
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Wouldn't you love to buy your dream condo right now? Many families may be put off by high condo costs or not able to raise the down payment.

A new trend in Toronto home purchasing is rent-to-own financing.

How it works is, you choose a unit and pay monthly rental payments.

A certain amount of those payments are put toward your down payment on a mortgage.

Several third-party companies now offer rent-to-own with various financing arrangements.

One condo developer that has had success offering rent-to-own directly to their purchasers is The Daniels Corporation.

Daniels is offering a bold new direction in home ownership with their NY Place boutique condos at Bayview and Sheppard.

Daniels VP Martin Blake says, "Certainly this is our second rental project and both have been tremendously successful for us. We had so many people register with us who are interested and it's one of those types of projects where the people who register with you the first time may not actually be ready right now, but they're close to being ready for the next project, so we see this as kind of a way for consumers to become aware of an option and for us to be able to deliver on that."

Blake explains how the program works.

"You come into the office and you choose the suite that you're interested in and as soon as you've chosen the suite, we can work out what the financing is.

Then you meet with the bank and the bank gets you preapproved for a mortgage on that unit and the rents are set up so that you're paying the equivalent of a mortgage right from day one."

Daniel's system allows the purchaser to accumulate half of their down payment in the first year.

"You're signing an agreement of purchase and sale at the same time," says Blake.

"And in that first year, what's happening is your 12 monthly payments that you're making, a portion is going to the deposit of the purchase of the unit and that makes up approximately 50 per cent of your down payment.

So by the end of your first year, 50 per cent has come from you paying rent on a monthly basis, and then at the end of that year you close and you become a homeowner."

The program has proven to be very popular for Daniels.

"In one week alone we had four or five information sessions with about 90 people per session," says Blake.

Crispy, delicious and pesticide-free

We're not the only ones that like to bite into apples
Learn how to harvest fruit that's tasty and safe to eat

LEE REICH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Here's half of an apple with a codling moth inside of it in New Paltz, N.Y.

DIY IDEAS

With more forethought, Adam might not have bitten the apple and I might not have planted apple trees. But he did, and I did, and we each must deal with the consequences.

For my part, I hadn't realized that apple trees had so many pest and disease problems until I planted 25 dwarfs.

Sure, those problems can be fought with repeated sprays of pesticides. But with a little research and planning, an acceptable crop of high quality apples can be harvested using little or no pesticide.

Insect thugs

The three major insect pests for apples are the apple maggot, plum curculio and codling moth. Apple maggots are the worst of the lot, dimpling fruits and riddling them with brown trails of burrowing larvae.

Given free rein, they make almost every fruit too damaged to eat.

Thankfully, the apple maggot has an Achilles heel. When this insect emerges as a fly about six weeks after the trees have bloomed, the females search around for the biggest, reddest apples in which to lay eggs.

Ms. Maggot can be hoodwinked with fake apples: red spheres coated with a sticky material called Tangletrap.

Or with sacrificial real apples: Buy the firmest, reddest Red Delicious you can find, force a stiff wire through the core to hang the apple, and coat the fruit with Tangletrap.

(Traps of real apples eventually rot, so usually need to be replaced once or twice a season.)

One trap per dwarf tree, hung at head height in clear view, or four traps per full-size apple tree, should provide an irresistible enticement to the egg-laying apple maggot.

Plum curculio, which is active during the six weeks immediately following bloom, can cause fruit to drop early. The traditional way to thwart it, effective if done diligently, is to spread an old sheet or dropcloth beneath each tree each morning, then give the tree or branches a sharp whack with a padded mallet.

Curculios drop from the tree and play dead, at which point they can be gathered up and destroyed. Letting chickens forage beneath apple trees also offers some control.

Spraying is another way to control curculio, but instead of the usual chemical pesticide sprays, use a spray derived from nothing more than kaolin clay.

The material, marketed under the name Surround, leaves a white coating on the fruit. Build up a good, powdery base with three sprays just before trees bloom, then spray every seven to 10 days, or after heavy rains.

The clay spray also thwarts codling moth, with its signature big, fat worm.

This pest is active for much of the season, but even unchecked, affects only 25 per cent of fruits.

Disease

The three worst diseases afflicting apple trees are fire blight, cedar-apple rust and scab. Certain pesticides control cedar apple rust, but spraying must begin before blossoms open.

Although apple insects have cosmopolitan tastes, disease organisms are finicky. Another way to control diseases is to plant a disease-resistant variety.

SOLVING A DUVET CLEANING DILEMMA

Hello!
I have a down-filled comforter that clearly states "Dry Clean Only". Is there any way I can avoid the dry cleaners to have this cleaned and do it myself?
Signed,
Laundry Lady

Dear Laundry Lady,

The good news is that yes, you can wash a down-filled duvet.

However, there are some very specific steps that you must follow to ensure success.

1. Only ever wash it in a front loading washing machine; never a top loader as the agitator in a top loading washer will damage the down duvet.

2. Use 1/4 the amount of soap, because soap is very difficult to remove from this kind of garment.

You can always wash a second time and add more soap if needed.

3. When you put the duvet in the dryer you will need some tennis balls in a sock — these will bounce around to help break up the feather clumps within the duvet

4. Do not use the auto dry feature on the dryer, instead use the timer and leave the duvet in for a long time, as the feathers take time to dry.

You may think the duvet is dry to the touch but remember the feathers!

I have left my duvet in the dryer for easily an hour and sometimes even an hour and a half.

There is nothing nicer than clean laundered items, and a duvet is something, with the right equipment and soap, you can easily do yourself.

LEGAL MATTERS

JEFFREY COWAN
HOME @METRONEWS.CA

Q. My mother is 87 years old and owns a house valued at $450,000 to $500,000.

My brother is currently living with her in order to help her out with day-to-day living. There are five siblings in total.

My mother's will specifies that her assets are to be divided equally amongst her children.

We had considered transferring ownership to our brother but are worried about estate taxes and the ownership of the house after our mother passes away. Can you give us some guidance?

A: One of the most common methods of estate planning is to place one of the children of an elderly parent on joint ownership of the home.

In this case, your brother presumably does not own another residence and therefore there are no capital gains issues as he can declare it his principal residence.

As a joint owner, the property will automatically change ownership to that of your brother upon the death of your mother and will not become an estate asset. This should save approximately $7,000 in estate administration taxes.

The only real issue is your brother's honesty and how he approaches his ownership after your mother's death.

If he has no issue selling up and splitting the proceeds then it may be a possible estate planning strategy.

However, if this potential situation may lead to family problems and strife, you may want to consider this transfer to your brother very carefully.

There is nothing worse than a family torn apart by a battle over a late parent's estate.

Away with the fairies

Building and tending a tiny fairy garden can inspire children and adults alike

WILLIAM CULLINA/COASTAL MAINE BOTANICAL GARDENS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A fairy garden yurt made from bark and feathers at the Coastal Maine Botanical Gardens in Boothbay, Maine.

Fairy gardens — hidden beneath stout trees at botanical gardens, or proudly displayed on tabletops at garden centres and in homes — are captivating the imaginations of children and adults, providing an escape into a tiny world.

Young kids get caught up in the magic, industriously building homes for the fairies they believe are real.

Older children enjoy working on the tiny scale: five-centimetre plants and diminutive garden furniture. Adults enjoy the creativity, too.

"You see how real it is for the children," says Donni Webber of Long Beach, Calif., who blogs about fairy gardens. "For the parent, it becomes real, too. It takes us all back into that magical time when it was all for real."

A fairy garden can be made in most anything — an oak barrel, terra-cotta pot, even old luggage and basins. They also can be planted straight in the garden, on a patch of soil or a tree stump, or hidden beneath a bush.

Besides creating and maintaining the gardens, the two enjoy hunting for tiny accessories at garage sales and thrift stores.

"It is very special Mommy time," Holloway says. "I really love that."

She and Miranda often hide their fairy gardens outside for others to find.

"Little kids always notice," says Holloway. "Adults always walk on by."

The hide-and-seek appeal of fairy gardens has led some public gardens to encourage visitors to build fairy houses in out-of-the-way spots. The Coastal Maine Botanical Gardens in Boothbay, Maine, for instance, provides two building sites — along the shore and in the woods.

"What you notice a lot is the dads really get into it," says acting executive director William Cullina. "They like the construction, building things."

So many fairy structures are built that garden employees periodically go through and knock some down, Cullina said, returning the materials — such as sticks, pine cones and rocks — to the "Gnome Depot."

"It gets kind of like suburbia after awhile," says Cullina. "It sprawls — we get 'fairy sprawl.'"

Heather Fogg of Peoria, Ill., builds fairy gardens out of found objects, such as chipped metal basins and old dresser drawers, and uploads pictures of some of her finished gardens on Flickr.

"It's very much like dollhouses for adults. It's a way to create a mini world, have a visual escape from the day-to-day norm."
KRYSTAL KEISTLER-HAWLEY, AREA MANAGER FOR ECHTER'S GREENHOUSE & GARDENS

She scatters her mini-gardens among her outdoor gardens, "hidden like I imagine fairies would accidentally be found."

For children, making the furniture and accoutrements out of found objects is half the fun. But some adults prefer to buy their accessories, which they can do online and at garden centres and specialty shops.

Shedding a little light

Lighting basics for the key rooms in your home

DESIGN CENTRE

KARL LOHNES
HOME@METRONEWS.CA

As daylight gets shorter and shorter, I notice that the first thing I do when I come home is go around turning on all the lights.

Good lighting not only helps brighten up a space, but also highlights the special features of each room.

Every room needs three types of lighting: overall, task and ambient. Here's a room-by-room checklist of the lighting needed to keep things looking bright for the darker months ahead.

Living room: The right types of light can make a room either relax or come to life with energy. I like to fill dark corners in this room with recess lighting that is discretely hidden in the ceiling. You can also use upright-style floor lamp or small lights that shoot light upwards.

The task lighting in a living room is primarily for reading. A small-scale elbowed metal floor lamp is perfect for directing light where you need it.

Keep these sorts of floor lamps on each side of a sofa and beside your favourite reading chair.

Ambient lighting adds sparkle to a room and helps to balance other strong light sources in a room. Go for 15-watt candlestick-style lamps or use picture lights hung over your art work.

POTTERY BARN

▶ Museum track light

Kitchen: This room needs to have great light to work with. Overhead lighting is key and can come in the form of recessed (pot) lighting, or a flushmount light fixture. Under cupboard lighting is probably the most needed, yet most forgotten type of lighting for a kitchen. It keeps your counter and stovetop areas illuminated for chopping, washing dishes and other kitchen counter tasks. Simple to install, an electrician taps into an electrical source and wires small puck-shaped light fixtures under the upper cabinets.

POTTERY BARN.

▶ Chandeliers are a lovely ambient and overall light source for dining rooms.

Dining room: This room should evoke pure ambience. Bright overhead lighting is good to have on hand, but a dimmer switch will definitely be your best friend when planning lighting in this room.

The chandelier will be your main source of light. Make sure that the wattages of chandelier bulbs add up to at least 60 to 80 watts to help create a strong illumination. The bottom of a chandelier should hang 32 to 40 inches above the table.

Other ambient lighting could be wall sconces or picture lights that help wash a subtle light over the side walls in the room. Finally, the ultimate ambient light will be candles.

Let your pad shine

Adding plug-in timers on a variety of lamps around your home will not only keep minimal illumination, but will add a sense of security to your place.

▶ Wattage amounts: overhead 60-100 watts, task lighting 40-60 watts, ambient less than 25 watts.

Why air your dirty laundry?

Get your clothes off the floor once and for all ◗ Laundry hampers can be decorative, useful and fun

When we were young, "laundry hamper" might have referred to the floor under the bed.

A little later, it may have meant a mesh sack kept by the front door, with a pouch full of quarters for the laundromat.

But we are grown-ups now. An attractive receptacle for the day's castoffs is one of the small civilized gifts we give ourselves.

It's generally a modest investment that banishes the chaos, and brings in the calm that is the hallmark of a well-kept home.

For contemporary bath or bedroom suites, consider Bed, Bath & Beyond's sophisticated black faux leather hamper with removable basket, or West Elm's sleek white lacquered cylindrical hamper. (bedbathandbeyond.com, $79.99; westelm.com, $99)

Hampton Bay has a beautiful tilt-door double hamper that's really a piece of furniture; it would work as a vanity as well, and comes in white or hazel wood finish. (homedecorators.com, $209)

A nice willow hamper from Seville has a hinged lid, and comes in white or natural. (bedbathandbeyond.com, $39.99)

Seville also makes a professional-looking three-bag rack on a sturdy metal frame, complete with telescoping hanging rack and locking wheels. (sevilleclassics.com, $59.99)

Ikea has the Lillangen tall-boy cabinet with portholes for laundry, perfect for a tight narrow space.

The Fyllen basket in fire-engine red turns laundry gathering into a colourful exercise. (ikea.com, Lillangen, $119-$134; Fyllen, $7.99)

For the nursery, Southern California designer Nina Selby has a sweet aqua-and-lemon-striped hamper for her Cotton Tale label. (justforbabies.net, $54.95)

Hammering out your plans

Taking the next step to improve your home or condominium ◗ Tackle design process first, expert says

JON TATTRIE
FOR METRO

GEORGE DOYLE/STOCKBYTE/THINKSTOCK

Metro's homebuyers Joe Stanton and Liam and Madeleine Rushton have both purchased a new home. Now they are talking about renovations and trying to determine how to go about getting them done.

When Stanton, a 42-year-old banking executive, closed the deal on a downtown condo, he knew the first thing he would do when he took possession was upgrade the bathroom.

The Rushtons, who just found out they are expecting twins, are keen to have a family room in their new home in the suburbs. They definitely have the space to add a room … now all they need is the know-how.

Moe Abbas, owner of Ottawa General Contractors, says the first step in any renovation is the design process itself. You need to spell out exactly what you want to do in order to get a good quote for any project.

"The best is to go with a design and build company," he says. "Then I would call a few contractors to get a rough idea of how much it would cost."

The Rushtons' project will cost about $100,000 while Stanton's bathroom will run $10,000.

The Rushtons hire an architect for detailed plans of their sunroom.

Stanton plans out his bathroom himself, using his own ideas and gathering information from bathroom retailers and renovation sources including books, magazines and websites.

For the Rushtons, "It's a very detailed process. It'll be about five to six months to see a shovel hit the ground," Abbas says.

Abbas recommends padding the quoted price by five to 10 per cent. Part is for the normal overrun of a project, but also because the Rushtons and Stanton will likely change plans.

"People always want to add things while they're renovating — you might as well do the siding, you might as well change the windows — you see what I mean," he says.

"It's very rare that an addition comes in at the price it was quoted at."

Four months later — 10 months after they started — the Rushtons wave goodbye to the last contractor and spend their first Saturday in the new sunroom.

Stanton has an easier path to his swank washroom. He has to tick off the same boxes — cost estimate, design and permission — but everything is much quicker. The design only takes two hours, as does the estimate.

Many people skip getting a building permit for interior renovations, but Stanton plays by the rules and gets the paperwork. The work itself takes three days.

A month after he first decided to renovate his bathroom, Stanton slips into his claw-foot tub.

Checklist

- Check with your municipal planning authority to see if you need an engineer's stamp, a land survey or a grading plan for your project.
- Consult zoning rules and bylaws to see if your project is permitted.
- Check your contractor, too, recommends home renovators Mr. Build in Vancouver. Contact past clients (the contractor should provide references) and visit a work-in-progress — don't trust finished gems with no owners present.
- Go online to see if the company is listed on the provincial registration of businesses and check them out with the Better Business Bureau of Canada.

Pear dessert with the season

Add the fruit to this sweet ending for a touch of fall

Butter Pear Cake shakes up a classic

This Butter Pear Cake takes its influence from German Butter Cake.

Pears are added to go with the fall season but can be omitted for the straight-up gooey version. You can also leave off the almonds, if you prefer.

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRES

▶ This recipe makes 16 servings.

Ingredients:

Cake

- 2 medium fresh pears, peeled, cored and diced
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) cardamom
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) milk, room temperature
- 7 ml (1 1/2 tsp) instant yeast
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) sugar
- 5 ml (1 tsp) salt
- 1 egg
- 500 ml (2 cups) all-purpose flour
- 90 ml (6 tbsp or 3/4 stick) unsalted butter, room temp

Topping

- 125 ml (1/2 cup or 1 stick) unsalted butter, room temperature
- 125 g (4 oz) cream cheese, room temp
- 250 ml (1 cup) granulated sugar
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) salt
- 2 eggs
- 10 ml (2 tsp) vanilla
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) corn syrup
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) all-purpose flour

Garnish

- Powdered sugar
- Toasted sliced almonds

Preparation:

1. Coat a 23-by-22-cm (9-by-13-inch) baking dish with cooking spray. Then in a small bowl, toss pears with ground cardamom, and set aside.
2. In bowl of electric mixer fitted with the paddle attachment, combine milk, yeast, sugar, salt, egg and flour. Mix on medium until smooth dough has formed. Add 30 ml (2 tbsp) of butter and mix until fully incorporated. Repeat with remaining butter. This should take 8 minutes.
3. Scrape dough into prepared baking dish and, using greased hands, spread over bottom of pan. Cover with plastic wrap and let rise in a warm place until doubled, 45 minutes.
4. Heat oven to 180 C (350 F). Sprinkle pears over top of dough.
5. Topping: In bowl of electric mixer, cream together butter, cream cheese, sugar and salt. One at a time, add eggs, beating until well mixed. Stir in vanilla and corn syrup, then mix in flour. Dollop this mixture over pear-covered dough.
6. Bake for 40 minutes or until the centre is slightly set but still jiggly. Let cool. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and toasted almonds to serve.

Texas tightens its grip

Rangers improve to 3-1 in AL championship series as Cruz hits another big home run

RANGERS	TIGERS

HARRY HOW/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Nelson Cruz celebrates as he runs the bases after his 11th-inning home run last night.

The Texas tag team of Nelson Cruz and Mike Napoli was too much for the Detroit Tigers.

Cruz made a rocket throw to keep the score tied, then hit a crushing three-run homer in the 11th inning off Jose Valverde that helped send the Rangers over the Tigers 7-3 last night for a 3-1 lead in the AL championship series. Napoli had put Texas ahead with an RBI single earlier in the 11th.

Cruz, whose grand slam in the 11th inning won Game 2, once again starred for the Rangers in a game delayed at the start for more than two hours by rain.

With Detroit runners at the corners in the eighth and the score tied at 3, Cruz caught Delmon Young's flyball to right field and made a strong peg to Napoli, the catcher, to nail Miguel Cabrera.

"For you guys that haven't seen Nelson every day, he's capable of doing exactly what he's doing," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "We've been waiting for it for a long time, and as I always say, I don't judge Nelson just because he hits balls out of the ballpark. He's a complete player. He takes pride in every part of the game."

Napoli blooped a go-ahead single in the 11th and Cruz soon added his fourth home run of the ALCS. Cruz became the first player in major league history to hit a pair of extra-inning homers in the same post-season series.

Texas tries for its second consecutive AL pennant today, sending C.J. Wilson to the mound to face Detroit ace Justin Verlander.

The ALCS has marked quite a turnaround for Cruz. After going just 1 for 15 in the first-round playoff win over Tampa Bay, he's 5 for 14 with nine RBIs in only four games against the Tigers — and seven of those RBIs have come in the 11th inning alone.

Brandon Inge hit a solo home run in the Detroit seventh that tied it. The Tigers wasted a terrific chance an inning later following some risky Texas strategy.

With one out and nobody on, the Rangers intentionally walked Cabrera, practically daring the rest of the struggling Detroit lineup to beat them. The AL batting champion had hit a two-run double earlier in the game, in fact.

"First time shame on you, next time shame on me," Washington said.

Red Sox GM Epstein joins Cubs: Reports

- 37-year-old reportedly agrees to five-year deal
- Boston won two World Series with Epstein at helm

WINSLOW TOWNSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

▶ Theo Epstein

Boston Red Sox executive Theo Epstein has agreed to a five-year contract with the Chicago Cubs, according to multiple media reports.

The 37-year-old Epstein would leave the Red Sox with a year remaining on his contract as general manager and take over what is expected to be an expanded role with the Cubs, who have gone 103 years without a World Series championship.

Radio station WEEI in Boston, ESPN the Magazine and SI.com all cited unidentified sources in reporting that Epstein has agreed to a deal. Details, which could include compensation to the Red Sox, were still being worked out.

The Cubs declined comment yesterday and Red Sox officials could not be reached by The Associated Press.

On Tuesday, a person familiar with the situation told the AP that Epstein was likely to join the Cubs within 48 hours.

With Epstein at the helm, the Red Sox ended an 86-year World Series championship drought in 2004 and won the title again in 2007.

Cubs chairman Tom Ricketts fired GM Jim Hendry in August and finished 71-91. They have been pursuing Epstein, who just finished his ninth season with Boston.

The Red Sox missed the playoffs following a record collapse, going 7-20 in September and finishing at 90-72.

Jones, Machida set to collide in Toronto

UFC 140 slated for December at the ACC Jones, perhaps UFC's hottest fighter, is youngest ever title-holder

Just 24, UFC light-heavyweight champion Jon (Bones) Jones recently became the proud owner of a Bentley.

"God is good, man. Definitely," Jones said with a smile yesterday when the subject of his $190,000 US Bentley Continental GT came up.

Former champion Lyoto (The Dragon) Machida drives a Toyota back home in Brazil.

"It's a regular car. There's nothing too special about it," he said through an interpreter.

Sporting contrasting styles as well as wheels, the two mixed martial arts stars are headed for a collision Dec. 10 at UFC 140 at the Air Canada Centre.

"This is a fun one, I like this fight stylistically," UFC president Dana White told a news conference to promote the card.

UFC 129 at the Rogers Centre in April drew a UFC-record gate ($11 million) and crowd (55,724). Not surprisingly given those numbers, White and Jones were both generous in their take on Toronto.

"This is without a doubt the strongest (MMA) market on the planet," said White.

Added Jones: "I really look at Canada as the mecca when it comes to our support base."

At six foot four, Jones, a former junior college wrestling champion has an 84.5-inch reach — the longest in UFC history at any weight class. Jones's wingspan makes him hard to attack.

Opponents have come at Jones at their peril. With an unpredictable arsenal of punches and kicks on his feet and a savage ground attack, Jones has sent more than a few fighters to hospital.

Machida, as calm as they come, is unfazed by the whirling dervish that awaits him in the cage.

"I guarantee that on Dec. 10 I'll be well-prepared and I can overcome his athleticism with my technique," the 33-year-old Machida said.

The six-foot-one Machida (17-2) is fast and elusive, coming from a unique family and fighting background. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Send a KISS

You can now post your kiss, and read even more kisses, online at metronews.ca/kiss.

Lye, Things seem fading away I admit it. But I have JandLye etched in stone, and no matter how much wind blows our way we'll remain together, forever and a day. I know you feel the same way I just want to let you and the whole world know I love you. J

thatgirlfromthestore, Hey, just wanna send a kiss to you, miss you each day I don't see you. BUDDYBOI

Kutti, You can't be my boy, you r the 50 yrs old guy(ha-ha). My hero never compare me with others (smile), he knows I feel jealous :) who r u? WONDER WOMAN

canny71, "If I could reach up and hold a star for every time you've made me smile, the entire evening sky would be in the palm of my hand." ~author unknown~ KACKE

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 The more you put yourself out for friends and colleagues today, the more you will benefit.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Try not to get so close to something you are working on that you lose your sense of perspective.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Get busy working on a creative project that will benefit not only you but other people as well.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Someone you love will demand more independence today, if you are smart you will give it to them.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 If you use your social skills wisely today, you will make friends with people who can help transform your life.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Any barriers you encounter today are there for a reason, so don't moan that fate is being unkind.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Today's Sun-Saturn union will remind you how important it is not to get carried away. Think before you act.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 There are things in your life that have been holding you back from your full potential. Get rid of them.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 It's good that you are ambitious but you also need to stay on good terms with people who can help.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 The most important thing today is that you guard your independence and your right to be different.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 A Sun-Saturn link will bring a challenge. You'll handle it with ease. It will be a confidence booster.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. You have backed yourself into a corner from which it won't be easy to escape. SALLY BROMPTON
